bilitated at the present day, it is common to may, "I think I have malaria." What is ma-laria? It is only germs that get into the body; germs that thrive and increase unless they are killed; germs that worm themselves all through the system; germs that ruin the health and undermine the life. They are aggressive, they feed upon the body, they must be killed. Many things which have been advocated for killing these germs will not do so. It has been thought puinine would accomplish this, but many the cannot take quinine, it disagrees with the cannot take the puinine, it disagrees with the pure spirits taken in moderation will annot withstand it. Under the influence of pure stimulants the germs are killed, and the body is strengthened to expel them from the system, and thus restore the health.

It should not be understood, however, that thing specially pure, and specially desomething specially pure, and specially designed for this purpose, and that is precisely what Duffy's Pure Mait Whisky is. It is a scientific, medicinal preparation. It does not rank with the ordinary whiskies, but is specially designed for fortifying the body and repelling disease. It has the highest indorsements of loctors and scientists; it is wonderfully popular because it is so efficient and powerful. Do no be deceived into the use of any other, for there is no other preparation upon the market that can accomplish what is accomplished by Duffy's Pure Malt. You will find that it is kept by reliable druggists and grocers.

A rather curious state of affairs has existed at the station for a few days past. Several cars laden with the household goods of two families of new residents of Brookland—Mr. Johnston, from Philadelphia, and Mr. Mason, from New York—have been standing upon the siding and carning demurrage. The people who occupy the houses engaged by these newcomers refuse to move out, though duly warned, and hence this uncomfortable situation.

It was Lafayette Post that a few months since petitioned Congress to pass the following bill to provide for the dedication of the statue bill to provide for the dedication of the statue to the Marquis de Lafayette:

Whereas a statue has been erected at the southeast corner of Lafayette Square, in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, by the United States government, and no ceremonies of dedication have been held; and Whereas the coming encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, to be held in the said city of Washington, beginning September 20, A. D. 1892, would seem to be a most appropriate occasion for such dedication: Therefore,

Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay out of the moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of $3,000 for the purpose indicated, and that the committee on public buildings and grounds of the Senate and House of Representatives be authorized as a joint committee to conduct such celebration on the 19th day of September, A. D. 1892. A. D. 1892.

This bill was introduced in the Senate by Senator Hiscock and in the House by Mr. Little of New York city on March 30, and it has been reported favorably in the Senate, but no action has been had upon it in the House. There is probably not a member at either end of the Capitol who would object to unanimous consent being given to its immediate consideration and passage, as nothing but patriotic and national impulses are appealed to in asking for its passage. It is understood that an effort will be soon made to take this bill from the House calendar and pass it without further delay. alendar and pass it without further delay.

A Disappointed Gobbler.

Calling on a neighbor on the Anacostia road she informed me that she expected to lose her turkey gobbler, as he had been under the corn house several days, and must be sick. At the next call I learned that the hired man had been under the house to bring the turkey next call I learned that the hired man had been under the house to bring the turkey out to see what was the matter. He came out laughing with the intelligence that the gobbler had made a nest and was setting on three eggs. The eggs were taken away and the nest broken up. He made another nest, and when discovered had two eggs under him. Finding he was determined to set, a sufficient number of eggs was given him, and he was let alone. Of course at each call I inquired about this masculine that without entirely giving up his attentions to the hen turkeys had assumed their most arduous duties.

Three weeks expired, no chickens appeared (the eggs were not turkey eggs), but on the twenty-fourth day four little chickens were taken from the next and several of the eggs were pipped. The next morning between 3 and 4 o'clock the dog made such a noise that he waked his mistress. As he seemed anxious to get out his mistress opened the door and he made for the corn house. As soon as she could make ready she followed him and found the gobbler in a towering rage, seizing the chickens by the throat, stretching himself to his full height and seemingly beyond it, slinging the chickens in all directions. The last victim was taken from him and was not deed at sundown and the four that were taken away at first were little beauties and doing well. After completing the massacre of chickens the turkey tore up the nest, scattering the straw and empty shells in all directions and spent the day strutting around and gobbling as frhe wanted the whole neighborhood to know of his great exploit.

discharged him, as his services had not been satisfactory.

The clerk received his money and went about his business, but last night he returned to the neighborhood of the hotel and waited outside until his former employer came out. Then the ex-clerk used his knife, but exactly under what circumstances the police have been unable to ascertain. Mr. Moylan says but little about the affair, and the only eyewitness found by the police is very reticent. It is known that a few minutes before the bloody encounter the ex-night clerk had called on Mr. Moylan and the latter had ordered him out.

The injured man was attended by Dr. H. E. Leach. An examination showed that the knife had made a number of flesh wounds, which, while not dangerous, will terribly disfigure him while not dangerous, will terribly disngure him for life. A small piece of his nose was cut off. There was a cut extending from the right temple across the check to his mouth, another across the scalp and forehead, while still another gash extended across the throat and back of his left ear. The most dangerous wound was a cut on the left side below the heart. This, it is thought, was a cut on the left side below the heart. CORNELL BEATS COLUMBIA. The Ithaca Crew Won Easily by Eight Boat

The Cornell freshmen best Columbia in yesterday's boat race by eight lengths. A glorious day yesterday was for the race. Cayuga lake was like a great mirror and both clubs in prime condition. Large throngs of spectators arrived by every train and the stores imported from surrounding waters. Vantage points for observation on the shore were solidly held down like mining claims or new town lots by parties with immense lunch baskets. It was a gala day for the city and a grand picnic for all the country round. The stroke of the New York boys was the most novel and peculiar ever seen on the lake or by Cornell carsmen, though it is a Columbia stroke formulated two years ago.

There was less betting than usual, for Columbia had few backers. Many local sports who bet their money to win and not from sentiment put moderate sums on Columbia. The New Yorkers declared the Gienwood course the finest on earth and their preferred site for future water contests. The Columbia crew won many friends by its manliness and gentility.
